Answer 1

① The Supremacy of the Constitution refers to its highest legal authority within a country in constitutional law. It means that the ~~supreme~~ constitution is the supreme law that governs and controls all other laws and government action.

Answer 2

② Legal foundation: The Constitution serves as the legal foundation of the nation, establishing the fundamental principles, structures and rights that shape its legal and political system.

(i) Hierarchy of laws: The Constitution is placed at the top of the legal hierarchy. Any law of government inconsistent with the Constitution can be declared unconstitutional and therefore invalid.

(ii) Protection of Human Rights: Constitutions often include a bill of rights safeguarding individual liberties. The supremacy of the Constitution ensures that these rights are prioritized and cannot be easily overridden by ordinary legislation.

(iv) Stability and Consistency: By being the Supreme law the Constitution provides stability and consistency to legal framework.

(v) Limitation on government Power: Constitutional supremacy acts as a check on government powers; it establishes the ~~boundaries~~ boundaries within which the ~~govt~~ government must operate.
